

Background

Brazil is a leading producer of soybeans. Managing weed resistance in soybean crops is a significant challenge for farmers.

Aerial Application Role

Aerial application of herbicides is widely used in Brazil to manage large soybean farms, allowing for timely and efficient weed control over vast areas.

Outcome

Using aerial application for herbicide delivery has helped Brazilian soybean farmers maintain high productivity levels and manage weed resistance more effectively.

